Project Description

This app would connect friends who needed a ride with friends who were willing to give people rides. A main use for this type of app would be to set up designated drivers for people who were in need of a ride home. It would have a look and feel similar to other ride sharing apps like Lyft or Uber but it would be for use only among friends, so there would be no payments involved. It would be linked with your Facebook account so you could interact with people who you don't have a phone number for. People could set times that they were available for driving or could post when they were planning on driving through a certain area. For example, if you knew you'd be driving from Oakland back to Berkeley at 10pm, you could post and see if anyone needed a ride home from a bar in Oakland on your way home.
